2005 International IT Law Conference

June 9-10, 2005 Los Angeles, CA

Why this program? Why now? Why you?

Most legal conferences focus on intellectual property, and to a large degree overlook large-scale IT systems and project failures, the outsourcing riddle, the open source conundrum, and the specialty areas of IT insurance and Sarbanes-Oxley. This conference program was created to address these omissions and to provide the information at a level appropriate for intermediate and advanced practitioners.

How do we do that? What do we cover?

IT systems and project failures are rampant, huge and crippling. We have created unique sessions featuring transaction lawyers, litigators, CIOs and expert witnesses to share their experiences on how to avoid failures and deal with them in court.

Other IT sessions will address selecting and using experts, and simplifying the complexities of IT for triers of fact; this track will be capped by a three-hour, live mock trial illustrating proven and effective courtroom strategies and techniques using one of today's most technologically advanced courtroom.

Sarbanes Oxley dramatically changes the landscape for executive responsibility and accountability. Presenters will explain what you must know and do as lawyers and advisors to help clients meet this new challenge – specifically with regard to IT issues and operations.

Open source is on the rise! What is it? Why is it so important to do it "right" in your organization? How and when to use it? These questions will be addressed thoughtfully and pragmatically by leading experts in this field, including how to develop commercial products in an open source world, litigating open source infringement cases, and implementing appropriate risk management practices when using open source software.

Outsourcing has been a great boon for some and a great headache for others. Presenters, including some experienced with outsourcing to India and China, will explain how to avoid common and hidden mistakes, draft critical clauses, discuss what you can and must do to make it work, and illustrate how to operationally and legally turn around a deal that's gone bad.

Intellectual property lawsuits can dictate corporate success or failure. Yesterday's legal strategies and courtroom techniques won't work in the 21st century. Two "winners" in this struggle will share with you new weapons to prevail in this dynamic legal area.

IT insurance is complicated, not well understood, and full of surprises. Two of the industry's leading legal experts will pull back the veil, and share with you the most common misconceptions made and best strategies used by transaction lawyers and litigation counsel involved in IT insurance coverage.

International computer crime is getting more malevolent and ubiquitous. It's time that you and your clients get the full picture of the problem, where it is likely headed, what can and is being done about it by government, security consultants, and academia. A multimedia presentation will include a computer crime case study.

How will you benefit from this Conference?

- ▶ You will learn actual legal strategies, common tactics, procedures, contractual provisions, arguments, jury simplification and communication techniques that worked well for attorneys and their expert witnesses in some of the more high-profile IT failure cases here and abroad.
- ▶ You will leave the conference armed with the practical and tested strategies, tools, methods, and experiences shared at this conference, making you better equipped as an advisor, counselor and litigator.
- ▶ You will gain a competitive edge, and an ability to raise the value, protection and profits of your clients to a new level, relying upon your newly found colleagues, information, tools, and techniques.

Southwestern University School of Law, under the auspices of the Donald E. Biederman Entertainment and Media Law Institute, is pleased to host the 2005 International IT Law Conference, June 9-10, at the Southwestern Law School campus in Los Angeles.

Information Technology (IT) has permeated every fiber of society. Virtually every governmental, corporate and educational entity is totally dependent on IT for its continued operations. And, as one can imagine, along with this dependence come significant business and legal issues.

The 2005 International IT Law Conference is a two-day, multi-track, information-packed event that will bring together nationally and internationally known experts from around the world to discuss and share their experiences with an audience of lawyers, computer industry executives and government representatives from the Americas, Asia and Europe.

With 24 panel discussions, memorable keynote speeches, and numerous networking opportunities, this event is a must for anyone involved in information technology transactions, and those who litigate, arbitrate or mediate IT-related disputes. For those who serve on boards of directors, or are advisors to boards, this event is crucial in dealing with the ever-changing, and often misunderstood, information technology industry.

This event will focus on four areas of IT law:

- ▶ IT transactional law and litigation
- ▶ Outsourcing
- ▶ Open source issues
- ▶ Current developments in IT law

The presentation formats will include more than just "talking heads," and will offer delegates access to the most technologically advanced, "wired" mock trial room in the United States for live demonstrations of trial strategies and tactics used in IT cases. We hope you will join us.

Don't miss out, register today! Space is limited. Registrations will be processed in the order received.

The Donald E. Biederman
Entertainment & Media Law Institute

Southwestern Law School has had a long and intensive involvement with the entertainment and media industries, particularly in the Los Angeles area. Located at the center of "The Entertainment Capital of the World" and the "Digital Coast," Southwestern has an outstanding entertainment- and media-oriented faculty. Southwestern graduates occupy important positions with a broad range of entertainment and media companies and with law firms specializing in the representation of entertainment and media clients. Recognizing the growing interest in this area around the country and internationally, Southwestern launched the Donald E. Biederman Entertainment & Media Law Institute in 2000 to provide a broad-based entertainment, media and intellectual property law curriculum for law students as well as information and assistance to practitioners.

Southwestern University School of Law Julian C. Dixon Courtroom and Advocacy Center

Southwestern has created an incomparable setting for learning practical, innovative advocacy, litigation and alternative dispute resolution (ADR) skills. Both the courtroom and the ADR suite in the Dixon Center feature the most advanced audiovisual, digital and multimedia systems available. The specialized technology greatly enhances communication among judges, attorneys, witnesses and jurors participating in a trial or appellate court proceeding, or among the participants in a mediation or arbitration. The Dixon Center facilities and the specialized courses taught there present students with unparalleled hands-on opportunities to practice their skills in a professional context and to observe real hearings and trials occasionally held in the Center.

Michael D. Scott, Co-Chair

Professor Michael D. Scott is a national authority who is considered one of the "pioneers" in computer and high-tech law. He teaches primarily in the intellectual property and related areas at Southwestern. Formerly a partner with the law firm of Perkins Coie, Professor Scott has over 29 years of experience representing high-technology clients. He has been an adjunct professor at Loyola, Pepperdine and Western State Law School in addition to Southwestern where his relationship as an adjunct dates back to 1976. Professor Scott currently serves as Editor-in-Chief of The Cyberspace Lawyer and E-Commerce Law Report; is a member of the Advisory Board of Derecho de la Alta Tecnologia (Argentina) and Computer Standards and Interfaces (Holland); and serves as a correspondent to Computer Law & Security Report (England). He also serves as Co-Chair of the California State Bar's Intellectual Property Section, Computer/Internet Roundtable and is a frequent speaker on computer and technology issues. Professor Scott earned his B.S. at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and his J.D. from UCLA.

Warren S. Reid, Co-Chair

Following a distinguished career as a management and computer technology consultant and partner at an international consulting firm, Warren S. Reid founded the WSR Consulting Group, LLC, in 1988. He has been engaged in developing and implementing large-scale systems and turning around systems in crisis situations, such as helping create and launch the Federal Energy Office for President Jimmy Carter in 75 days, and overseeing the testing and acceptance of California's Lotto Lottery games in just 100 days. For more than 18 years, Mr. Reid has been actively engaged in litigation matters in the United States, Canada, Asia and Europe as a consultant and expert in cases. He has testified in U.S. State and Federal Courts, and has been engaged as an expert by a "Who's Who" in the world of international business. Mr. Reid graduated with highest honors from Baruch College in New York City and earned his M.S. and M.B.A. degrees from the Wharton Graduate School of Finance. Mr. Reid is the author of over seventy-five published business and technology articles, and is the co-author with Michael D. Scott of a best selling book — The Year 2000 Computer Crisis: Law, Business and Technology.

Hotel Accommodations

The Conference has made special arrangements with two excellent hotels only a short distance from the venue. They are:

Radisson Wilshire Plaza Hotel
3515 Wilshire Boulevard
Los Angeles, CA 90010

Phone: (213) 381-7411 or
(800) 333-3333

Website: <http://www.radisson.com>
(.73 miles from the venue)

Omni Los Angeles Hotel at California Plaza
251 South Olive Street
Los Angeles, CA 90012

Phone: (213) 617-3300
Fax: (213) 617-3399

Website: <http://www.omnihotels.com>
(2.77 miles from the venue)

Both hotels are offering the same favorable rates for the Conference:

$129 per night, single or double occupancy ($10 for each additional occupant). These rates are net, non-commissionable and do not include taxes. Just mention the "Southwestern IT Law Conference" when making your reservation.

These rates are available Wednesday - Friday, June 8-10, 2005. The block of rooms at this rate will be held until May 8, 2005 – so please reserve your room early. Reservations should be made directly with the hotel and must be accompanied by the first night's deposit by check or credit card. Any cancellations are subject to the hotel's cancellation policy.
